The Market Yesterday Ended In Stagnation.

United States Steel Preferred Went Down to 57 I-4 - Organized Effort Made to Start Prices Upward. Money Market Easy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—To-day's stock market passed through many phases and ended to-day in neary stagnant condition, and with prices for the most part not far from last night's level. The market enjoyed its period of decided strength during the early part of the day when the selling pressure which has been so consp.cuous recently seemed to be entirely withdrawn. The most notable of these was the building up of a large short literet, which gave evidence of its existence by an eagernass to borrow stocks for del very, causing a number of the industrials to command a slight premium for that purpose in the loan crowd. Speciative circles were inclined to attach importance to some very large concentrated buying of unsettled preferred, which was noted yesteroay, and gave rise to reports of a vely important accumulation. That stock, in consequence, recovered to s.x., and inspired hope that its downward course habeen arrested, at last.

The importance attached to the shipbuilding case was indicated by the good effects of a rumor that the suit was to be adjusted, and discontinued; a. the same time, there was some talk of a dividend increase on Amalgamated Copper, and of a decidantion of a dividend on Reading second preferred.

A downward plunge in United States Steel preferred to 51 1-4, the lowest price on record, had a chilling effect on the whole movement and caused a reactionary tendency.

The selling of the stock was associated with the renewed stock market flurry in Pittsburg and it was rumored that the selling of the stock was associated with the renewed stock market flurry in Pittsburg and it was rumored that the selling of the stock was associated with the renewed stock market flurry in Pittsburg and it was rumored that the selling of the stock was associated with the renewed stock market flurry in Pittsburg and it was rumored that the selling of the specia

The Western demand for currency is still deferred, and New York exchange at Chicago went to 16 cents premium. The money market is correspondingly easy in tone, but bankers generally agree in caution on the possibility that the demand, though late, may still come up to the normal.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The cotton market opened sheady at an advance of 2 points to a dedecine of 1 point, and for a time abowed some little further steadness following the better cables. The longs were disappointed, however, at the absence of frost, and with the weather favorable, not only as to the temperatures, but with generally clear sides, the steadness was soon lost and prices segged slowly downward upit a level net 262 hours below the closing quotations of the previous night was reached. Offerings were not aggressive, however, selling for short account boing restricted by the more pacific view taken of the far Easters, troubles, will the trade were also rendered fearful of an advance by the expectation of a buillish weeking weather report from New Orleans. When the was issued it proved quite as unferovable as expected, and later in the day buying became more active, prices at one time going uprapidly and reaching a point some 12d 15 points net higher on the active months. Just hefore the close profit-taking by room longs became shout a partial reaction, but the market was family steady, net 7d212 points higher. Sales were ostimated at 400,000 hales, A factor in the afternuous advance was the smaller estimates for to-morrow's receipts at leading points and COTTON MARKETS.

PURELY-PERSONAL

Things Seen and Heard at the Horse Show Last Evening.

"Isn't she a queen?" The words were those of one of the best known manufacdavit of Miss Rosalle Rein, charged with turers of Richmond, who is on the shady side of fifty. He was talking of a browneyed beauty in a box not far away, gowned in shining silk and filmy lace. "I used to spark her oldest sister. That was nearly twenty-five years ago. Look at those eyes-oh! well, Mrs. Blank is waiting." and he went away in a hurry. more work than her companion. She says her complaint irritated Dr. Walker, and he "hauled off" and slapped her.

"I am going to see the show through, matiness and all," said J. H. Crossley, of Washington. "If it goes on mto next week, I'll stay." Mr. Crossley has no horses entered here, but he has some fine ones on his farm in Frederick county. They and Their Wives Are Entertained A scene of light and beauty was the Maryland.

"I am goin gto give two n'ghts to the Horse Show," said Mr. J. H. Miller, of Rappahannock. "I wish I could make it a week," and the way the Rappahannocker said it was indubitable evidence that he spoke the truth.

"I know rather more about boats than horses," said Judgo E. F. Montague, of Hampton. "I like to look at horses and see them do their stunts, but I suppose I am goting most pleasure out of meeting so many friends."

"Cattle is my strong point," said Mr. Charle's H. Paxton, of Natural Bridge, as he leant on the rail and picked winers," but the horse has a place closest to my heart," He didn't say anything about hounds, though he is one of the best known fox hunters in the Valley.

President Fritz Sitterding, of the Vir rresident Fritz sitterding, of the Virginia Passenger and Power Company, attracted attention last night by the clossiness with which he watched the various events. Mr. Sitterding has not the reputation of being a horseman, but he is well known as a keen lover of the noble authority. an'mal

"I would like to see Fliz Lee on one of those hunters in the ring," said an old Confederate, who was a member of the Charles City cavalry in the war between the States. "He is the best rider I have ever seen." Then he told of the ovation accorded General Lee when, as Governor of Virginia, he rode up Pennsylvania Avenue in the parade at the inauguration of President Cleveland in 1885. And Captain C. Gray Bossieux recalled how General Lee used to beat all the young men of his staff riding at Jacksonville during the Spanish war.

A FESTIVE WEEK

The Horse-Show Means Much to the People of the State. Horse Show week in Richmond ha

come to mean a great deal to the people of the city and Virginia. The city wears an air of festivity in this mid-autumn season which it never has during the twelve months. It is a week of Thankagiving Day or Christmas. The hotels are crowded, and the lobbles are filled with visitors, and local people intent on talking horses and otherwise enjoying themselves. The visitors are most interesting. Horse people from all over the Etate are here, and their conversation, horsey always, attracts and pleases the hearer more than politics tickles the ear of the candidate or political manipulator. It is genuine. Costume does not make a horseman. This was very strikingly exemplified at Murphy's and the Auditorium yesterday afternoon. The central figure in the hotel lobby for several hours was an old gentleman, wearing a long gray beard, slouch hat, checked shirt and a light suit he had evidently worn several months last year, and had had on for as long a time in this year of grace.

But the way that man could and did talk horses was a caution. He seemed to know every animal entered, its pedigree and past schleywenents. At the stables come to mean a great deal to the people talk horses was a caution. He seemed to know every animal entered, its pedigree and past achievements. At the stables out at the grounds he was equally an authority. He did not know anything of several of Dr. Woodend's horses, for in-stance, but his opinion of their chances, expressed after an inspection, was eagerly cought. And throughout the afternoon he expressed after an inspection, was easering sought. And throughout the afternoon he kept his jaws working vigorously, on an enormous quid of tobacco, which he was never seen to change.

The average horseman is young. The

The average norseman is young. Inserving women are, of course, most interested in the animals exhibited. But it was most noticeable that many matrons whose hair is streaked with silver appeared to know the horses entered apwell as their husbands dld, and to like to discuss them just as well.

The holiday feeling is everywhere ap-

The holiday feeling is everywhere apparent. It is a source of general regret that the decoration of the city is not more general, but if outward feative signs are lacking, the manner and the words of the average Richmond citizen prove that the holiday idea is in their hearts. The Richmond Horse Show, as an institution, becomes this week the subject of interesting study to the rank outsider who prefers people to the royal horse. Incidentally, the accommodations of the city for visitors are being most heavily taxed. Each of the hotels can take a few more guests; the boarding houses can take care of a few more, but if the number of visitors is greatly increased many will find it hard to obtain bed and board.

EXHIBIT HEATHERBLOOM

An attraction extraordinary has been arranged for the Horse Show by the management for to-night, and another even arranged for the Horse Show by the management for to-night, and another even greater for Saturday night. Although Heatherbloom, the world's champion high jumper, will not compete in any of the classes, owing to the death of the little son of his owner, Mr. Richard Donnelly, who has the horse in his charge, has consented to parade the famous horse in the ring tenight. Heatherbloom will be seen in the ring with a streamer of crape depending from his bridle this evening. The splendid animal is well worth seening, even though he does not jump. Heatherbloom is a brown gelding, sixteen hands one inch, remarkable for his broad forehead and his intelligence, as well as his great jumping feats. For Saturday night a high jumping exhibition, second only to that which might have been given by Heatherbloom. Will be given by Mr. Donnelly's forner champion high jumper, Riffe, beaten by Heatherbloom three weeks ago. Mr. Donnelly will jump his horse in an effort to could Heatherbloom's record, but if he succeeds in doing this he will not attempt anything further. Riffe has a brilliant record as a jumper, having cleared a fence seven feet eight inches, or within one and a quarter inches of Heatherbloom's championship record at a private exhibition.

Rifle is a thoroughbred bay, a Chainshot out of a toroughbred, registered mare, and is now eleven years old. He mas won twenty-eight high jumping concests from six feet six up to seven feet four inches, and in a private exhibition jumped seven feet eight inches, within an inch and a quarter of Reatherbloom's Hryn Mawr performance. In a long distance impring competition in Belgium there cleared forty feet, over a dry ditch feet deep with a fence four feet won the high jump last year at Madison Square Garden, beating such ho ses at Pearl, Myopia, Lord Minto, Richmond and Chappie, Lord Minto being second and Chappie, which is now here, third. Year before last Rifle won over such jumpors as Sure Pop, Pearl, Rupert and many others. others.

After the Richmond show Mr. Donnelly will take the veteran jumper to Chicago, and next year will take him to Belgium

MR. HURKAMP COMING

He Will Arrive Here To-Morrow With Hori pipe and Amaret.

Mr. J. T. Anderson, president of the Horse Show Association, yesterday received a telegram from Mr. Charles II. Hurkamp, at Fredericksburg, informing him that Mrs. Hurkamp, bis wife, whose illness detained him at home, is much improved, and that if desired he would be here Thursday with Amaret and Hornplpe, Mr. Smith at once wired him to come, and there is no longer any doubt that this most popular horseman with his peerless pair of hunters will be here, and participate in the show Thursday night and thereafter. That means that he is going to carry off some of the ribbons, for it will take a good horse to defeat the Hurkamp entries.

Amaret and Hornpipe are entered in the pairs of jumpers Thursday night, and in the qualified hunter class the same night. Amaret is entered in the ladles' hunters class Friday night, and both Amaret and Hornpipe in the corinthian class of hunters the same night, and one or both are likely to get in the champion hunters and jumpers class Saturday night, entries for which are made at the post. ceived a telegram from Mr. Charles H.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews did not live happily together. No doubt Josephine was of a determined mind, with a will as unalterable as her hurband's. A connection of Josephine's says that she was given a negro, Washington, by her father. Josephine was compelled by her husband to cook for him and this negro, and wait on them at the table.

After much trouble and dissension Dr. Andrews locking his wife in a room, fled with their child, Josephine escaped, and returned to her father's in Norfolk. There Josephine denounced her book, saying its contents were false, and wholly imaginary. This, her friends say, she did for Catholic protection for herself and child.

Not long before her death Mrs. Androws publicly denied having written this book.

The Bunkley children were called Josephine, Josephs, Thomas Joseph, Sarah Joseph, Caledonia Joseph and Claudia Joseph, Caledonia Joseph and Claudia Joseph, The child not named Joseph died.

The Bunkleys were wealthy people. A large tract of land near Virginia Beach still goes by the name of Bunkley's farm.

When Josephine was a child, her father moved to Norfolk, where he held a position in the Custom House. The family residence stood on the site now occupied by the Atlantic Hotel. The house was of brick, with a large stone porch to which you assended by stone steps enclosed by an iron railing. ENTERED NUNNERY.

I do not know much about the childhood of Josephine. When quite a young girl, living in Norfolk, she often passed the Holt St. Catholic Asylum, and was much moved by the sweet singing of the children. Influenced by a friend, she went to the nunnery at Emmetshurg, aganist her family's wishes, took the white veli woman of many accomplishments, and particularly well versed in music. She was a valuable acquisition to the teaching corps, and I know taught on the harp.

Hecoming dissatisfied (to put it mildly) with her vecation, she escaped by climbing out of a second story window to a under the protection of a Mrs. Grimes, after which she went to her father's
